Eurogas Re-elects Cristian Signoretto as President for a further two-year mandate

Brussels, Belgium, 15 June 2026 - Eurogas, the leading association representing the European gas sector, has re-elected Cristian Signoretto as President and Michael Lewis as Vice President at its General Assembly, each for a further two-year mandate at a pivotal moment for Europe's energy system.

Mr Signoretto, Director of Global Gas and LNG Portfolio at Eni, and Mr Lewis, Chief Executive Officer of Uniper, will lead Eurogas as it supports the transition towards climate neutrality while ensuring secure and affordable energy for European industry and households.

Their renewed mandates come as Europe's energy system undergoes a profound transformation in response to climate objectives, evolving market dynamics and recent geopolitical shocks. In this context, Eurogas is focused on how natural, renewable and low-carbon gases can continue to play a central role in delivering decarbonisation, competitiveness and security of supply.

Commenting on his re-election, Cristian Signoretto, President of Eurogas, said:

"I am honoured by the trust that Eurogas members have placed in me for a second mandate. Europe's energy transition has entered a new chapter, defined by new market realities. Our task is to ensure that gases, natural, renewable and low-carbon, continue to support this transition by providing secure, flexible and affordable energy for citizens and for Europe's industrial base, while keeping us on track to meet our climate goals."

Andreas Guth, Secretary General of Eurogas, said:

"The re-election of Cristian Signoretto and Michael Lewis reflects our members' strong confidence in their leadership at a time of profound change. Under their guidance, Eurogas will continue to ensure that regulation and market design allow gases to keep contributing to security of supply and affordability, while the sector adjusts to new demand patterns and evolving market realities."
